

[illegible]

A method and system for canceling echo signals originating from a transmitter at a predetermined data rate. The echo signals are received by a receiver at a different data rate. The echo system is configured to manipulate data rates of transmitted signals, and reconstruct echo signals for consideration by the receiver. In view of the band-limited nature of these echo signals, the invention intelligently reduces the computational complexity of reconstructing and canceling echo signals.

15 S:\DOCS\MMA\MMA-2057.DOC
021800